Allerton Park:
Located approximately 20 miles southwest of Champaign, Allerton Park was a gift to the University of Illinois from Robert Henry Allerton in 1946. As stipulated in the contract, the park was to be used by the institution “as an educational and research center, as a forest and wild-life and plant-life preserve, as an example of landscape architecture, and as a public park.” The park is approximately 1,500 acres which is composed of woodland, formal gardens, and the Sangamon River. Tenant farms surround the park, revenues from which support the park operations. The Allerton estate has been converted into an educational conference center, which also supports the park financially.
